

R-PRO GROUP CONFIDENTIALITY, NON-COMPETE, NON-DISCLOSURE AND DATA PROTECTION POLICY

R-Pro Group (“R-Pro” or “the Group”) recognizes that its information assets, client relationships, and partner networks constitute valuable proprietary assets and are critical to its operations, regulatory compliance obligations, client trust, competitive advantage, and overall business continuity. This Policy sets out every covered person's duty of confidentiality and non-disclosure, restricts competing activity and solicitation during and after engagement, defines the information it protects, prescribes the conduct that constitutes a breach, and establishes the disciplinary, contractual, civil and regulatory consequences — including claimable damages — that follow a breach. It applies across R-Pro Travels and Tours Limited, R-Pro Abroad Consult, R-Pro Consulting Services, R-Pro Business Consult, Cyjust Deals, and Iprolance Solutions, and every other present or future affiliate or brand operating under R-Pro Group.

A covered person becomes bound by this Policy on acceptance, and acceptance is not limited to a handwritten signature: electronic acceptance, written or email acknowledgment, incorporation by reference into an engagement contract, deemed acceptance by conduct, witness attestation, and biometric acknowledgment are all valid and independently sufficient modes of acceptance, as set out in full in Section 27 (Modes of Consent and Binding Effect).

1. Purpose

The purpose of this Policy is to:

- a. Establish a zero-tolerance framework for data leakage and confidentiality breaches;
- b. Protect the confidentiality, integrity, availability and security of R-Pro's information assets;
- c. Define prohibited activities relating to confidential information;
- d. Establish accountability for individuals entrusted with access to R-Pro information;
- e. Provide mechanisms for investigation, remediation and enforcement;
- f. Prescribe disciplinary, contractual, civil, criminal and regulatory consequences for breaches; and
- g. Protect the legitimate business interests of R-Pro both during and after engagement.

2. Scope

This Policy applies to every person who has access to, processes, stores, transmits, manages, supervises, controls, receives or handles R-Pro information, including Permanent Employees; Contract Employees; Temporary Staff; Consultants; Retainers; Directors; Advisory Board and Advisory Council Members; Interns; NYSC Members; Independent Contractors; Vendors; Travel, Visa, University, Employer, Hospital and Health Tourism Partners; Technology Partners; External Auditors; Professional Advisers; and Former Employees or former engagement personnel of any R-Pro brand (each, a “covered person”).

The obligations under this Policy shall apply regardless of whether the information was obtained physically, electronically, verbally, digitally, through remote access, or through any other means.

3. Duty of Confidentiality

Every covered person acknowledges that in the course of their engagement, duties, or association with R-Pro, they may have access to confidential, proprietary, privileged, personal, financial, commercial, medical, regulatory, operational, strategic, and other sensitive information belonging to R-Pro, its clients, employees, directors, partners, international affiliates, investors, service providers, and other stakeholders.

Every covered person undertakes to hold all such information in strict confidence and to protect it from unauthorized access, disclosure, use, copying, reproduction, transmission, or dissemination.

4. Classification of Confidential Information

For the purpose of this Policy, Confidential Information includes all non-public information relating to R-Pro, its clients, employees, partners, operations, products, systems, strategies, business relationships and regulatory obligations, including without limitation:

A. Client Personal Data, such as:

- Passport, national ID, and visa application data;
- Travel itineraries and booking records;
- Health tourism records, including medical referrals, diagnoses, and treatment information;
- Study abroad and worker placement applications and offer records;
- Business advisory and consulting engagement records;
- Financial records, investment and fixed deposit information;
- Biometric records and contact details.

B. Corporate and Strategic Information, such as:

- Business plans, product frameworks (e.g. R-Pro Explore, R-Pro Apply), and strategic initiatives;
- Financial forecasts, pricing models, and budget information;
- Internal reports, compliance records, and risk assessments;
- Business performance data;
- Board, Advisory Council, and committee papers and management reports.

C. Technology and Security Information, such as:

- Passwords, encryption keys, and access credentials;
- Security protocols and cybersecurity systems;
- Source codes, databases, and network architecture;
- Disaster recovery plans and security incident reports.

D. Proprietary and Commercial Information, such as:

- Trade secrets, intellectual property, and business methodologies;
- Operational processes and internal procedures;
- Marketing plans and confidential contracts;
- University, employer, airline, hospital, agency, and vendor partnership agreements;
- Agreements and arrangements with local and international partner or principal firms, including leads, prospective partners, commission structures, referral terms, and partner contact persons;
- Investor and investment circle information;
- Legal opinions, litigation documents, and agreements;
- Employee records and human resource information.

All information shall remain confidential irrespective of whether it is written, oral, visual, printed, digital, electronic, recorded, stored in cloud environments, stored on physical devices, or reproduced in any format, and irrespective of whether it is designated confidential or would reasonably be understood to be so.

5. Non-Disclosure Obligation

No covered person shall, directly or indirectly:

- Disclose confidential information to any person not authorized to receive it;
- Discuss confidential matters in public places or through unsecured communication channels;
- Share confidential information with family members, friends, former colleagues, competitors, or third parties;
- Provide, transfer, or disclose R-Pro's trade secrets, client data, or other confidential information to any subsequent or prospective employer, that employer's staff, business partners, family members, or friends, whether or not for personal or third-party gain;
- Use confidential information for personal benefit or for the benefit of another person; or
- Remove, copy, photograph, download, store, or transmit confidential information except as required for authorized R-Pro purposes.

6. Conduct Constituting Data Leakage, Confidentiality Breach or Unauthorized Disclosure

A breach shall occur where any act, omission, misconduct, negligence, recklessness, intentional conduct, fraud or unauthorized activity results in, facilitates or increases the risk of unauthorized disclosure or compromise of confidential information. The following shall constitute breaches:

A. Unauthorized Disclosure, such as:

- i. Providing confidential information to unauthorized persons;
- ii. Sharing client information without lawful authority;
- iii. Discussing confidential information in public spaces;
- iv. Posting confidential information on social media;
- v. Sending confidential information to personal email accounts;
- vi. Forwarding confidential emails without authorization;
- vii. Disclosing information to competitors.

B. Data Mishandling, such as:

- viii. Insecure storage of information;
- ix. Leaving confidential documents unattended;
- x. Improper destruction of records;
- xi. Failure to follow approved data retention procedures;
- xii. Use of unauthorized software or storage devices.

C. Unauthorized Access, such as:

- xiii. Accessing systems outside assigned responsibilities;
- xiv. Viewing client information without business justification;
- xv. Using another person's credentials;
- xvi. Sharing passwords;
- xvii. Circumventing security controls.

D. Data Exfiltration and Theft, such as:

- xviii. Copying databases;
- xix. Downloading mass client records;
- xx. Extracting client lists;
- xxi. Taking screenshots of confidential information;
- xxii. Removing documents before resignation;
- xxiii. Stealing confidential records;
- xxiv. Soliciting clients using R-Pro information.

E. Cybersecurity Violations, such as:

- xxv. Deliberate introduction of malware;
- xxvi. Circumvention of cybersecurity controls;
- xxvii. Unauthorized installation of software;
- xxviii. Unauthorized remote access activities;
- xxix. Data scraping or extraction.

F. Post-Exit Misconduct, such as:

- xxx. Retaining confidential information after exit;
- xxxi. Failure to return R-Pro assets;
- xxxii. Misusing information acquired during engagement;
- xxxiii. Disclosure of confidential information after disengagement;
- xxxiv. Assisting competitors using confidential information obtained from R-Pro.

Attempted breaches, conspiracy to commit a breach, aiding or facilitating a breach, and failure to report known breaches shall be treated as breaches under this Policy.

7. Protection of Client Information

Client information — including travel, immigration, health tourism, placement, and financial advisory data — is protected by applicable data protection and other laws and regulations. Every covered person undertakes to treat all client information with utmost care and confidentiality and to access such information only where required for the performance of their official duties.

8. Information Security

Every covered person undertakes to:

- Keep passwords and access credentials secure;
- Prevent unauthorized access to R-Pro systems and records;
- Lock or secure confidential documents and devices when not in use; and
- Immediately report any suspected data breach, unauthorized access, loss of records, or security incident to Management or the designated compliance contact for the relevant R-Pro brand.

Failure to report a known or suspected breach may itself constitute misconduct and may attract disciplinary action.

9. Conflict of Interest and Personal Gain

No covered person shall use confidential information to obtain any financial, commercial, personal, or other advantage for themselves or any third party, or engage in unauthorized disclosures, solicitation of R-Pro's clients or partners for competing purposes, or any activity that may compromise the integrity, reputation, or interests of R-Pro.

Every covered person shall disclose to R-Pro, in writing, any outside employment, business interest, directorship, or engagement with another organization before commencing it, and shall obtain R-Pro's written consent before undertaking any outside engagement that may conflict with their duties or with R-Pro's business interests, including any engagement in an industry described in Section 12.1. R-Pro shall maintain a register of disclosed outside interests.

10. Return of Property

Upon resignation, termination, retirement, or completion or cessation of any engagement, or whenever requested by R-Pro, every covered person shall immediately return all R-Pro property, records, files, documents, equipment, identification cards, passwords, access devices, and any other materials in their possession, and shall not retain copies of any confidential information in any form whatsoever.

Every covered person shall, before their final date of engagement, complete R-Pro's Exit and Handover Checklist, confirming the return of all R-Pro property, devices, and access credentials; the handover of client files, leads, and Protected Partner contacts to their line manager or successor; and that no confidential information has been retained in any form, including on personal devices, email accounts, or cloud storage. R-Pro may withhold final pay, unpaid commission, unpaid benefits, or a certificate of service pending completion and sign-off of the checklist by the covered person's line manager and R-Pro's compliance function.

11. Preservation of Confidentiality After Exit

The confidentiality obligations contained in this Policy shall survive indefinitely and shall remain binding after resignation, retirement, termination, dismissal, completion of contract, completion of internship, completion of NYSC service, or any cessation of engagement with R-Pro.

Former personnel shall not directly or indirectly use, disclose, exploit, retain, or benefit from confidential information.

12. Non-Compete, Non-Solicitation and Protection of Business Interests

R-Pro invests substantial time, training, and resources in developing its client relationships, local and international partner networks, business leads, and proprietary business methodologies (including the R-Pro Explore and R-Pro Apply frameworks and other product methodologies). A recurring risk to R-Pro's business is covered persons leaving to set up or operate a competing business, using relationships, know-how, or clients built while engaged with R-Pro for personal gain, or circumventing R-Pro's relationships with its local and international partners, leads, and principal firms. This Section 12 does not restrict a covered person's general right to work in the industry after leaving R-Pro; it protects R-Pro only against direct competition from, misuse of its confidential information by, and circumvention of its partner and lead relationships by, former covered persons, and does so through a notification-and-approval mechanism rather than an outright, unqualified ban.

12.1. Non-Compete and Restriction on Use of Confidential Information

Following cessation of engagement with R-Pro, and for as long as the relevant information retains its confidential, proprietary, or trade-secret character, a covered person in a client-facing, management, strategic, or business-development role shall not, directly or indirectly:

- Own, establish, manage, operate, or invest in any business within Nigeria that offers travel and tours, visa and immigration advisory, study abroad or worker placement, health tourism, business and consulting advisory, or agricultural finance and agritech services in competition with R-Pro (a "Competing Business"); or

- Use R-Pro's confidential information, client relationships, or business methodologies for the benefit of a Competing Business, or for any other personal or third-party gain, in either case without first notifying R-Pro in writing and obtaining R-Pro's prior written approval in accordance with Section 12.2. This Section 12.1 does not restrict a covered person's right to seek or accept employment generally within the travel, tourism, immigration advisory, education and worker placement, health tourism, business advisory, or agricultural finance and agritech industry. It restricts only the establishment, ownership, or operation of a Competing Business, and the use of R-Pro's confidential information for competitive or personal advantage, without R-Pro's prior written approval.

12.2. Notification and Consent Requirement

A covered person who wishes, at any time following cessation of engagement, to establish, join, invest in, or take up a role that would involve competing with R-Pro or using R-Pro's confidential information, trade secrets, client relationships, or business methodologies, shall first notify R-Pro in writing, disclosing the nature, scope, and ownership of the intended activity, and shall obtain R-Pro's prior written approval before proceeding.

R-Pro shall not unreasonably withhold approval where the covered person satisfactorily demonstrates that no R-Pro confidential information, trade secret, or client relationship will be used or benefited from. Proceeding with a Competing Business, or with any use of R-Pro's confidential information for competitive or personal gain, without such notification and approval, shall constitute a breach of this Policy.

12.3. Damages for Unauthorized Competition

Without prejudice to Section 17 (Claimable Damages and Indemnification), where a covered person establishes, operates, or participates in a Competing Business, or uses R-Pro's confidential information or trade secrets for competitive or personal gain, without the notification and approval required under Section 12.2, R-Pro shall be entitled to claim damages equal to, at R-Pro's election:

- i. The total turnover generated by the Competing Business over its entire period of existence; or
- ii. Three (3) years of R-Pro Group's turnover, whichever R-Pro elects, in addition to any other remedy available under this Policy or applicable law, and without prejudice to R-Pro's right to injunctive relief under Section 12.9.

12.4. Non-Solicitation of Clients

At any time following cessation of engagement, without any time limitation or expiry, a covered person shall not directly or indirectly solicit, divert, or accept business from any client or prospective client of R-Pro with whom the covered person had material contact or dealings in the twelve (12) months preceding cessation of engagement, for the purpose of providing services that compete with R-Pro. This obligation is non-negotiable, is not subject to the notification-and-approval mechanism in Section 12.2, and may not be waived except by an express written waiver signed by the Group Managing Director of R-Pro Group.

12.5. Non-Solicitation of Staff and Protected Partners

At any time following cessation of engagement, without any time limitation or expiry, a covered person shall not:

- Induce or attempt to induce any employee, contractor, or consultant of R-Pro to leave their engagement to join a Competing Business; or
- Induce or attempt to induce any Protected Partner (as defined in Section 12.6) to reduce, alter, or terminate its relationship with R-Pro, or to deal directly with the covered person or any Competing Business in place of R-Pro.

This obligation is non-negotiable, is not subject to the notification-and-approval mechanism in Section 12.2, and may not be waived except by an express written waiver signed by the Group Managing Director of R-Pro Group.

12.6. Non-Circumvention of Local and International Partners, Leads, and Contacts

R-Pro invests significant time and resources in building relationships with local and international partners, principals, agents, leads, and contacts — including airlines, universities, hospitals and health tourism partners, visa and immigration bodies, destination management companies, vendors, and prospective partners that R-Pro has sourced, introduced, or cultivated. A partner, lead, or contact is a “Protected Partner” for the purpose of this Policy where R-Pro has any business relationship, arrangement, or engagement with that partner, lead, or contact — whether formalized through a signed memorandum of understanding, contract, or other agreement, or arising from an informal, verbal, or ongoing course of dealing, or from a lead or prospective relationship R-Pro is developing — and the covered person was introduced to, or had material dealings with, that partner, lead, or contact in the course of their engagement with R-Pro. At any time, whether during or after their engagement with R-Pro, without any time limitation or expiry, a covered person shall not, directly or indirectly, for any reason and regardless of whether the activity would constitute or involve a Competing Business:

- Contact, deal, or transact with any Protected Partner other than through R-Pro and in the proper course of their duties;
- Use, retain, copy, save, or exploit the identity, contact details, or any other information relating to a Protected Partner for any purpose other than R-Pro's business, whether for the covered person's own benefit, the benefit of any third party, or otherwise;
- Circumvent R-Pro's role as agent, intermediary, principal, or affiliate by dealing directly with a Protected Partner, or by directing a client, student, patient, or other beneficiary to deal directly with a Protected Partner, for the purpose of avoiding a commission, fee, or referral otherwise due to R-Pro;
- Appropriate for themselves, or for any other person or business, whether or not a Competing Business, any commission, fee, referral, lead, or business opportunity arising from R-Pro's relationship with a Protected Partner; or
- Disclose to any person the identity, contact details, commission structure, or terms of R-Pro's relationship with any Protected Partner, which shall be treated as confidential information under Sections 3 to 11 regardless of whether it is separately marked confidential.

This obligation is non-negotiable, is not subject to the notification-and-approval mechanism in Section 12.2, and may not be waived except by an express written waiver signed by the Group Managing Director of R-Pro Group.

12.7. Relationship to Confidentiality Obligations

The restrictions in this Section 12 are in addition to, and do not limit, the confidentiality and non-disclosure obligations in Sections 3 to 11, which continue to apply indefinitely.

12.8. Reasonableness and Severability

The parties consider the restrictions in this Section 12 to be reasonable and necessary to protect R-Pro's legitimate trade secrets and business interests, having regard to the fact that the non-compete restriction in Section 12.1 applies only to the establishment or operation of a Competing Business and to misuse of confidential information — not to general employment in the industry — and is subject to the notification-and-approval mechanism in Section 12.2. Where a court or tribunal of competent jurisdiction finds the open-ended duration of the non-compete obligation in Section 12.1 unenforceable, that obligation shall automatically be read down to apply for twenty-four (24) months from the date of cessation of engagement, or such other period as the court considers reasonable, and the remainder of this Policy shall continue in full force.

The non-solicitation and non-circumvention obligations in Sections 12.4, 12.5, and 12.6 are narrower in scope, are non-negotiable, and are not subject to the automatic twenty-four-month reduction that applies to Section 12.1. Where a court of competent jurisdiction finds their open-ended duration unenforceable, that duration shall be read down only to the minimum extent the court considers strictly necessary, and no further, so as to preserve the longest enforceable protection available to R-Pro.

12.9. Remedies

Breach of this Section 12 shall be treated as a breach of this Policy for all purposes, including under Sections 12.3 (Damages for Unauthorized Competition), 12.6 (Non-Circumvention of Local and International Partners, Leads, and Contacts), 17 (Claimable Damages and Indemnification), and 18 (Right of Set-Off and Recovery), and R-Pro may in addition seek injunctive relief to restrain any actual or threatened breach.

13. Intellectual Property Protection and Assignment

R-Pro's competitive position depends on intellectual property developed by its personnel and partners, including product frameworks (such as R-Pro Explore and R-Pro Apply), marketing and training materials, software, templates, client-facing tools, and other original works. This Section protects R-Pro's ownership of that intellectual property both during and after a covered person's engagement.

13.1. Ownership of Work Product

All inventions, designs, frameworks, methodologies, software, databases, written materials, training content, marketing materials, and any other work product created, developed, or improved by a covered person in the course of, arising from, or in connection with their engagement with R-Pro ("Work Product") — whether or not created on R-Pro premises, using R-Pro resources, or during working hours — shall be the sole and exclusive property of R-Pro.

13.2. Assignment

To the extent any Work Product does not automatically vest in R-Pro by operation of law, each covered person irrevocably assigns to R-Pro all right, title, and interest in and to such Work Product, including all intellectual property rights in it, and waives, to the fullest extent permitted by law, all moral rights in respect of it. Each covered person shall execute any further documents and take any further steps reasonably required by R-Pro to perfect this assignment.

13.3. Duty to Disclose

Each covered person shall promptly disclose to R-Pro any Work Product created in the course of their engagement, and shall not file, register, or claim any intellectual property right over such Work Product in their own name or in the name of any third party.

13.4. Pre-Existing and Third-Party Intellectual Property

This Section 13 does not apply to intellectual property that a covered person owned prior to their engagement with R-Pro and which is unrelated to R-Pro's business, provided such pre-existing intellectual property is disclosed to R-Pro in writing before use in the course of engagement. R-Pro shall likewise respect the intellectual property rights of third parties and shall not require any covered person to infringe such rights in the course of their duties.

13.5. Post-Exit Restrictions

Following cessation of engagement, no covered person shall use, reproduce, adapt, license, sell, or otherwise exploit any R-Pro Work Product, trademark, brand name, or proprietary methodology (including the R-Pro Explore and R-Pro Apply frameworks) without R-Pro's prior written consent. This restriction applies in addition to, and does not limit, the confidentiality and non-compete obligations in Sections 3 to 12.

13.6. Ownership of Business-Related Social Media and Contacts

Any social media account, business page, contact list, or client or partner database created, managed, or built up in R-Pro's name, using R-Pro's resources, or in the course of a covered person's duties — including accounts used to promote R-Pro's brands or to communicate with R-Pro's clients, leads, or Protected Partners — is R-Pro's property, regardless of the platform used or the name in which the account is registered. Upon cessation of engagement, the covered person shall hand over full access to, and control of, any such account or database to R-Pro, and shall not retain, use, rename, or continue to operate it for their own benefit or that of a Competing Business.

14. Duty to Immediately Report Breaches

Any covered person who becomes aware of a suspected data breach, unauthorized access, loss of confidential documents, cybersecurity incident, unauthorized disclosure, improper use of client information, or any act likely to compromise information security, shall immediately notify Management or the designated compliance contact for the relevant R-Pro brand.

R-Pro shall not retaliate, threaten, discipline, demote, harass, dismiss, or otherwise disadvantage any covered person who, in good faith, reports a suspected breach or concern under this Section 14, whether the report is made internally or to a relevant regulator. Any act of retaliation against a good-faith reporter shall itself constitute a breach of this Policy and may result in disciplinary action against the person responsible for the retaliation. This protection does not extend to a report made maliciously, in bad faith, or with knowledge that it is false.

15. Breach Investigation Procedure

On receiving a report under Section 14, or where R-Pro otherwise becomes aware of a suspected breach, R-Pro's compliance function or a designated Investigation Officer shall assess the report and determine within five (5) business days whether a formal investigation is warranted.

15.1. Conduct of Investigation

Where an investigation is opened, it shall be conducted promptly, objectively, and confidentially, with access to information about the investigation limited to those who reasonably need to know. The covered person under investigation shall be informed that an investigation is taking place, save where doing so would risk destruction of evidence, intimidation of witnesses, or other prejudice to the investigation.

15.2. Interim Measures

Pending the outcome of an investigation, R-Pro may suspend the covered person's access to systems, premises, leads, Protected Partner contacts, or confidential information, and may place the covered person on suspension with or without pay to the extent permitted by law, where reasonably necessary to prevent further harm, preserve evidence, or protect R-Pro's clients or partners. An interim measure under this Section 15.2 is not itself a disciplinary sanction and does not require the fair hearing process in Section 16.

15.3. Findings and Timeline

The investigation shall be completed and its findings documented in a written report within thirty (30) days of being opened, save where R-Pro reasonably requires additional time due to the complexity of the matter, in which case the covered person shall be informed of the extension and the reason for it. Where the investigation substantiates a breach, the matter shall proceed to the disciplinary procedure in Section 16. Where the investigation does not substantiate a breach, the matter shall be closed, no adverse record shall be kept against the covered person on account of the allegation, and any interim measure under Section 15.2 shall be lifted.

16. Disciplinary Procedure and Right to Fair Hearing

No covered person shall be dismissed, demoted, or otherwise subjected to a disciplinary sanction for an alleged breach of this Policy without first being given a fair hearing, in accordance with this Section 16 and applicable Nigerian labour law.

16.1. Elements of a Fair Hearing

A fair hearing under this Section 16 shall include:

- Written notice to the covered person of the specific allegation and the provision of this Policy said to have been breached;
- A reasonable opportunity for the covered person to respond to the allegation, in writing or at a hearing, before any disciplinary decision is made;

- The right of the covered person to be accompanied by a colleague or representative at any disciplinary hearing;
- A decision made by a person or panel not directly involved in the original allegation or investigation; and
- Written notice of the outcome of the disciplinary process and, where applicable, the sanction imposed and the reasons for it.

16.2. Right of Appeal

A covered person disciplined under this Section 16 may appeal the decision in writing within seven (7) days of receiving notice of the outcome, to a more senior authority designated by R-Pro who was not involved in the original decision. The decision on appeal shall be final.

16.3. Relationship to Other Remedies

This Section 16 governs internal employment disciplinary sanctions only. It does not limit, delay, or serve as a precondition to R-Pro's right to pursue civil damages under Section 17, to exercise set-off or recovery rights under Section 18, to apply the equity forfeiture provisions in Section 19, or to seek injunctive relief, each of which may be pursued in parallel with, or independently of, the disciplinary process in this Section 16.

17. Claimable Damages and Indemnification

Without prejudice to any disciplinary, criminal, regulatory or civil action, where a breach is investigated and established to be attributable to a covered person, R-Pro reserves the right to institute recovery proceedings and claim compensation for all losses arising from the breach, under any applicable contract, undertaking, indemnity agreement, engagement document or applicable law.

17.1. Assessment of Damages

Where legally permissible and subject to the determination of a court or competent tribunal, damages may include:

- a. Actual financial losses suffered by R-Pro;
- b. Consequential losses resulting from the breach;
- c. Loss of business opportunities;
- d. Loss of clients;
- e. Loss of goodwill and reputation;
- f. Competitive losses;
- g. Regulatory sanctions;
- h. Costs of remediation;
- i. Investigation expenses;
- j. Legal and professional fees;
- k. Cyber incident response costs; and
- l. Any other loss directly or indirectly attributable to the breach.

R-Pro shall be entitled to recover all losses, costs, liabilities, penalties, reputational damage and consequential losses arising from the breach. In addition, where the severity of the data leakage or confidentiality breach may expose R-Pro to losses that may substantially exceed direct financial loss, R-Pro may seek damages up to an amount equivalent to three (3) years of R-Pro Group's turnover, subject to applicable law and determination by a court of competent jurisdiction. Nothing in this section shall prevent R-Pro from claiming a higher amount where the actual losses suffered exceed any assessed amount.

18. Right of Set-Off and Recovery

To the extent permitted by law, R-Pro reserves the right to:

- a. Withhold unpaid benefits pending investigation;
- b. Recover losses through lawful deductions;
- c. Set off indebtedness against entitlements owed to the individual;
- d. Enforce indemnity obligations;
- e. Recover assets obtained through unlawful conduct;
- f. Trace and recover confidential information wherever located; and
- g. Obtain injunctive relief to prevent further dissemination of confidential information.

The exercise of any recovery right under this Policy shall not prevent R-Pro from pursuing additional remedies available under law.

19. Equity and Share Allocation

Where R-Pro has allocated shares, share options, or other equity interest in R-Pro or any of its operating entities to a covered person (an “Equity Holder”), that allocation is granted on the terms of this Section 19, in addition to any separate share subscription agreement, shareholders' agreement, or R-Pro's articles of association governing that shareholding.

19.1. Vesting and Continued Compliance

Any unvested shares or options held by an Equity Holder shall vest only for so long as the Equity Holder remains engaged with R-Pro and remains in compliance with this Policy. Continued compliance with Sections 3 to 13 of this Policy is a condition of continued vesting, and is not satisfied merely by continued engagement.

19.2. Good Leaver

An Equity Holder is a “Good Leaver” where their engagement ends by reason of death, permanent ill health, redundancy, retirement at normal retirement age, or resignation, and, in every case, without any breach of Sections 3 to 13 of this Policy. A Good Leaver retains their vested shares, subject to R-Pro's right to require a buy-back at fair market value as independently determined, on terms to be set out in the applicable share subscription or shareholders' agreement.

19.3. Bad Leaver and Forfeiture

An Equity Holder is a “Bad Leaver” where their engagement ends by dismissal for cause, or where the Equity Holder resigns to join or establish a Competing Business, or breaches any provision of Sections 3 to 13 of this Policy, whether the breach is discovered before or after cessation of engagement. A Bad Leaver shall:

- Immediately and automatically forfeit all unvested shares and options, without compensation; and
- Be subject to compulsory repurchase by R-Pro of all vested shares held by that Equity Holder, at the lower of the nominal or par value of those shares and their fair market value, notwithstanding any higher value the shares may otherwise hold.

19.4. Restriction on Transfer

No Equity Holder shall sell, transfer, pledge, charge, or otherwise dispose of any shares or options allocated under this Section 19 to any person without R-Pro's prior written consent, and R-Pro shall not consent to any transfer to a person connected with a Competing Business or a Protected Partner.

19.5. No Waiver of Restrictive Covenants

Holding shares or options in R-Pro does not entitle an Equity Holder to any exception from, relaxation of, or defence against the confidentiality, non-compete, non-solicitation, non-circumvention, or other obligations in this Policy, and shall not be treated as consideration for, or a waiver of, any such obligation.

19.6. Interaction with Constitutional and Shareholder Documents

Where an Equity Holder's shareholding is also governed by a separate share subscription agreement, shareholders' agreement, or R-Pro's articles of association, the terms of those documents shall apply in addition to this Section 19. In the event of any conflict, the provision more favorable to R-Pro, or affording R-Pro the greater protection, shall prevail, and R-Pro shall take such steps as are necessary, including amendment of its constitutional documents, to give full effect to this Section 19.

20. Continuing Obligation

The obligations contained in this Policy shall survive resignation, retirement, termination, dismissal, disengagement, expiration of contract or cessation of relationship with R-Pro and shall remain binding indefinitely unless otherwise released in writing by R-Pro.

21. Data Protection and Regulatory Compliance

R-Pro processes personal data, including sensitive personal data such as health, biometric, and immigration information, in the course of its travel, health tourism, study abroad, and advisory services. Every covered person shall process such data strictly in accordance with the Nigeria Data Protection Act 2023, its subsidiary regulations, and any other applicable data protection law, and in accordance with R-Pro's internal data protection procedures, including by:

- Collecting and processing personal data only for lawful, specified purposes connected to R-Pro's business;
- Obtaining and recording appropriate consent or other lawful basis before collecting or sharing personal data;
- Limiting access to personal data to what is necessary for the covered person's duties;
- Reporting any actual or suspected personal data breach in accordance with Section 14 (Duty to Immediately Report Breaches) without delay; and
- Cooperating with R-Pro's Data Protection Officer or compliance function in any regulatory inquiry, audit, or investigation.

Failure to comply with this Section 21 shall be treated as a breach of this Policy and may additionally expose R-Pro and the covered person to sanctions under the Nigeria Data Protection Act 2023.

22. Non-Disparagement

During and after their engagement with R-Pro, no covered person shall make, publish, or cause to be made or published, any statement, whether written, oral, or through social or digital media, that is false, disparaging, or damaging to the reputation, goodwill, products, or services of R-Pro, its directors, employees, partners, or international affiliates, save where such statement is made in good faith in the course of a legal or regulatory process, a whistleblowing disclosure, or a report made under Section 14 of this Policy.

23. Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption

Given R-Pro's dealings with government agencies, immigration and visa authorities, and international principal firms, every covered person shall conduct R-Pro's business with integrity and in compliance with the Corrupt Practices and Other Related Offences Act 2000, the Economic and Financial Crimes Commission (Establishment) Act 2004, and any other applicable Nigerian or foreign anti-bribery and anti-corruption law.

23.1. Prohibited Conduct

No covered person shall, directly or indirectly, offer, promise, give, solicit, or accept any bribe, kickback, or improper payment or advantage — whether in cash, in kind, or otherwise — to or from any government official, immigration or visa officer, client, Protected Partner, vendor, or other person, for the purpose of improperly obtaining or retaining business, expediting a government process, or securing any other improper advantage for R-Pro, the covered person, or any third party.

23.2. Facilitation Payments and Gifts

No covered person shall make a facilitation payment to a government official or agency. Gifts, hospitality, or entertainment given or received in connection with R-Pro's business shall be reasonable, proportionate, transparent, and disclosed to R-Pro's compliance function where they exceed a value determined by R-Pro from time to time.

23.3. Compliance and Reporting

Any covered person who is offered, requested for, or becomes aware of a bribe, kickback, or other corrupt payment in connection with R-Pro's business shall immediately report it in accordance with Section 14 (Duty to Immediately Report Breaches), and the non-retaliation protection in that Section shall apply. Breach of this Section 23 shall be treated as a serious breach of this Policy and may additionally expose R-Pro and the covered person to criminal liability under applicable law.

24. Governing Law and Dispute Resolution

This Policy shall be governed by, and construed in accordance with, the laws of the Federal Republic of Nigeria.

24.1. Dispute Resolution

In the event of any dispute arising out of or in connection with this Policy, the parties shall first attempt to resolve the dispute amicably through good-faith negotiation. Where the dispute is not resolved within thirty (30) days, either party may refer it to arbitration in Lagos, Nigeria, in accordance with the Arbitration and Mediation Act 2023, before a single arbitrator appointed by agreement of the parties or, failing agreement, by the Lagos Court of Arbitration. Nothing in this Section 24 shall prevent R-Pro from seeking injunctive or other urgent interim relief from a court of competent jurisdiction at any time, including in respect of any actual or threatened breach of Sections 3 to 13.

24.2. Jurisdiction

Subject to Section 24.1, the courts of Lagos State, Nigeria shall have non-exclusive jurisdiction over any dispute arising out of or in connection with this Policy.

25. General Provisions

25.1. Relationship to Other Confidentiality and Non-Disclosure Agreements

This Policy does not replace, terminate, or reduce the effect of any confidentiality, non-disclosure, non-compete, or similar agreement a covered person has separately signed with R-Pro. Instead, this Policy supplements and upgrades every such prior agreement, sits alongside it, and adds to the protections and obligations already in place. Where any conflict exists between this Policy and a prior agreement, the provision that is more favorable to R-Pro, or that affords R-Pro or its clients and partners the greater protection, shall prevail. This Policy, together with the covered person's letter of engagement, employment contract, or consultancy agreement, otherwise constitutes the entire agreement between R-Pro and the covered person on the subject matter of confidentiality, non-competition, non-solicitation, and intellectual property, and supersedes only prior discussions or representations — not prior signed agreements — on that subject matter.

25.2. Amendment

R-Pro may amend this Policy from time to time to reflect changes in law, regulation, or business practice. Material amendments shall be communicated to covered persons in accordance with Section 27 (Modes of Consent and Binding Effect).

25.3. Severability

If any provision of this Policy is held invalid or unenforceable, that provision shall be severed and the remaining provisions shall continue in full force and effect.

25.4. Waiver

No failure or delay by R-Pro in exercising any right under this Policy shall operate as a waiver of that right, and no waiver shall be effective unless given in writing by an authorized officer of R-Pro.

25.5. Assignment by R-Pro

R-Pro may assign or transfer its rights and obligations under this Policy, in whole or in part, to any affiliate, successor, or acquirer of its business, without the consent of the covered person.

25.6. Notices

Any notice required under this Policy, including a notification under Section 12.2, shall be given in writing to the compliance contact designated for the relevant R-Pro brand, or to such other address as R-Pro may notify from time to time.

26. Definitions

For ease of reference, the following terms used in this Policy carry the meanings given where they are defined; in the event of any conflict, the definition in the operative section governs:

- “Confidential Information” — defined in Section 4.
- “Covered Person” — defined in Section 2.
- “Competing Business” — defined in Section 12.1.
- “Restricted Period” — the duration of the non-compete obligation, defined in Section 12.1 and subject to Section 12.8.
- “Protected Partner” — defined in Section 12.6.
- “Work Product” — defined in Section 13.1.
- “Equity Holder,” “Good Leaver,” and “Bad Leaver” — defined in Sections 19, 19.2, and 19.3 respectively.
- “R-Pro” or “the Group” — R-Pro Group and its operating brands, defined in the introductory paragraph of this Policy.

27. Modes of Consent and Binding Effect

This Policy does not depend on a handwritten signature alone. A covered person shall be bound by, and deemed to have consented to, this Policy by any one or more of the following, each of which is independently sufficient:

- Execution of the Declaration in Section 28 by handwritten or electronic signature;
- Electronic acceptance through R-Pro's HR, onboarding, or compliance systems, including a “click-to-accept” confirmation or e-signature, which shall constitute a valid signature under the Evidence Act 2011 and the Cybercrimes (Prohibition, Prevention, etc.) Act 2015;
- Written or electronic acknowledgment of receipt, including by email reply or confirmation to an official R-Pro communication channel;

- Incorporation of this Policy by reference into the covered person's letter of engagement, employment contract, consultancy agreement, or partner or vendor agreement, such that acceptance of that underlying agreement constitutes acceptance of this Policy;
- Deemed acceptance by conduct — where a covered person commences, continues, or resumes engagement with R-Pro, or accesses R-Pro systems, premises, or confidential information, after this Policy has been made available or communicated to them, whether or not a signature is obtained;
- Attestation by a witness or an R-Pro authorized officer confirming that the covered person was informed of and briefed on this Policy, where a signature cannot be obtained; or
- Biometric or thumbprint acknowledgment, for covered persons without means to provide a handwritten signature.

R-Pro shall maintain a record of the mode of consent obtained for each covered person, and such record shall be admissible and sufficient evidence of that person's acceptance of, and binding commitment to, this Policy.

R-Pro reserves the right to require re-acknowledgment of this Policy upon material amendment, at defined intervals, or upon change of role, and continued engagement thereafter shall constitute acceptance of the amended Policy.

28. Declaration and Acknowledgment

I, the undersigned, having been engaged by R-Pro Group, whether as an employee, contractor, consultant, retainer, intern, NYSC member, advisor, partner representative, or in any other capacity with R-Pro Travels and Tours Limited, R-Pro Abroad Consult, R-Pro Consulting Services, R-Pro Business Consult, Cyjust Deals, Iprolance Solutions, or any other present or future affiliate or brand operating under R-Pro Group, do hereby solemnly swear, affirm, and undertake to faithfully observe and comply with all confidentiality, non-compete, non-solicitation, intellectual property, equity and share allocation, data protection, anti-bribery, cybersecurity, compliance, and information security requirements set out in this Policy at all times, both during and after my engagement with R-Pro.

I make this declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true and binding upon me, whether given by signature, electronic acceptance, or any other mode of consent recognized under Section 27, and I understand that any breach may result in disciplinary action including termination of engagement, civil liability for damages, regulatory sanctions, criminal prosecution where applicable under Nigerian law, and any other remedy available to R-Pro under law or contract.
